

The Navis Group
Senior Consultant

Job Description

During 2022, The Navis Group is looking to add a community financial institution strategist and risk management consultant or two to the team. The Navis Group specializes in risk strategies including FDICIA and SOX implementation and maintenance, strategic planning, organizational architecture, LOS system search, back-office efficiencies, and whatever's next. Consulting for community institutions can be a daily stretch of one's abilities, requiring an eclectic and broad skillset to stay on top of banking regs and an ability to identify needs and opportunities with an eye toward providing professional solutions and results-oriented value. We are seeking entrepreneurial, confident, clear-thinking, seasoned individuals with a broad range of banking experiences; self-motivated and self-sustaining grown-ups with outstanding creative, communication, writing and presentation talents. The ability to think like a CFO one day, CIO the next, and CRO the day after, sums it up. This is not an employment offering, rather consulting sub-contracting. This is an opportunity to leverage the established client base, branding and structure of a respected Northeast consulting group that has served approximately 150 banks nationally and a half dozen banking associations over the past two decades. There will be no formalized acknowledgement or response, hiring or interview process. To be considered for a conversation, please use an "all-green" approach; kindly e-mail your story (not your resume, your story) to sidon@navis-group.com. We are aiming high. If your story is intriguing, we will follow up. Follow-up phone calls, scores of interviews, and canned resume presentations consume valuable billable consulting time, so your understanding is both appreciated, and frankly, part of the skillset sought.
